John LEONARD French
Introduction

This is one of a series of "Clan" books that document the genealogical records of the children of James Gentry French (1755-1939), who went by his middle name, Gentry. A "clan" is defined as all the descendants of a child of Gentry's by one of his three wives: Margret Amanda Burgner, Louisa Jane McCollum, and Sadie Nancy Shively. Gentry's sons Archie and Waldon had no children, so they will not have a clan book. That means the clans are Claude, Sabra, Gilbert, Leonard, Emmett, and Fred (children of Margret); Crawford and Presley (children of Louisa); Beatrice, Virginia, Viola, and Lu Etta (children of Sadie).

The Leonard Clan comprises the descendants of John Leonard French (1892-1935), Gentry and Margaret's son, who went by his middle name, Leonard, and his Tressie June Bowens (1894-1932). Leonard's ancestry may be found in the book James Gentry French and His Three Wives. Gentry's ancestry is included in the book Unknown French to Gentry French - Five Generations.

Notes for Leonard Wayne French:
Three years before retiring from the Nebraska State Patrol in 1978, Wayne joined the Board of Directors for the Central Plains Chapter of the American Red Cross and spent 12 years with that organization.

In 1984 he received request to serve on the group's hospice board. He started at Memorial Hospital and then went to St. Francis Medical Center.

From the Grand Island (NE) Independent, August 30, 2009 (article about Wayne):

Having so many family members directly affected by cancer has drawn hospice even closer to French's heart. Hospice is primarily a companion organization for a patient, a support group for the family and respite care for the caregivers, he said.

Katie Robbins, hospice volunteer coordinator and a social worker, said hospice is basically a program that helps people die with dignity. She added that the organization helps make patients comfortable, assists them with pain management and is in regular contact with patients' families after they die.
Some of the patients French visits are in their own homes, some live in nursing homes and others are at the veterans home, he said. As someone who served with the Marines in the South Pacific during World War II, French has a high interest in serving his fellow veterans.

French's visits sometimes consist of talking to and listening to the patients, reading to patients or taking them somewhere. "It depends on what they want," he said.

After a patient has died, hospice volunteers offer bereavement care for their loved ones. As part of that, French helped form a men's group about 15 years ago that meets once a month for lunch. The men talk about all kinds of things, from sports to politics. Sometimes a few men have a side conversation about their losses and how they dealt with their grief, he said.

Robbins said the men's group has been a "really good" thing for men who sometimes feel more comfortable speaking freely about their feelings with other men.

French acknowledged he must be careful not to let himself get down. He once lost three patients in one month and doubted whether he wanted to continue with hospice. However, it didn't take long for him to get back into his volunteering swing.

"You have to know not to go beyond your capabilities -- physically or emotionally," he said.

French would like to see more men volunteer with hospice. He said it is rewarding to walk with people through the last part of their lives. "We emphasize life rather than dwell on death," he said.

In addition to his continuing work with hospice and the Red Cross, French works with three veterans organizations, Boys State, the Junior Law Cadet program, the Nebraska Admirals, and the Grand Island Council for International Visitors. He also used to do fingerprinting at the Nebraska State Patrol.

Capt. Chris Kolb knew of French by reputation before the two men ever met. "He had a reputation for being extremely proficient, caring for his people, and being well versed in State Patrol policy and procedure. He's very sharp," Kolb said. "He's a genuinely nice guy. He's giving of his free time."

He added that French has assisted him with identifying people in old State Patrol photos, thus keeping some of the office's history from being lost. "He's a good resource," Kolb said.

French said he had to give up the fingerprinting duty when he had a pacemaker put in last year. "I don't let it slow me down too much," he said.

The fit and trim French said he tries to stay in shape with home workouts. He has been active since playing sports in high school and college and his time in the military. He knows his family wants him to slow down, but he said it isn't in his nature.

"I have a hard time saying no when I'm asked to help with a community organization," he said. "I enjoy people and visiting with them. I feel I'm earning rent for the space I occupy. I get satisfaction being able to serve my fellow man. If it weren't for volunteers, where would the United States be? Volunteers are a vital part of service and a lot of places rely on them."

Notes for Duane Martin French:

Duane wrote the following in 2000, on the anniversary of his accident:

Bridging Time

Thirty-two years ago I dove from the Alda Bridge into dimensions of my being I never knew existed. I was racked with grief at the loss of my mobility. I was tortured by feelings of being different. I was stunned by the immediate absence of opportunities. I passed through the darkness of many days that followed carried by the love of family, the goodness of friends and neighbors and support made possible by government services and charitable entities.

Looking back, it is the love of family and friends I treasure most. The ability to walk is simply a tool for getting around but for some it served as the measure of whether or not they could remain close to me. Relationships changed and time passed. Today, I lead a life few thought possible and I am blessed with an abundance of opportunity.

I honor this day by being grateful to my parents, family, friends and colleagues. I learned about strength, humor and resolve from my grandparents, parents, uncles, aunts, brothers, sisters and cousins. I learned compassion and commitment from loved ones and friends. The more I cared for others the more I cared about myself. I learned I can never love another beyond my capacity to love myself.

As Neil Diamond sings “the road is long and ever a winding curve” but I have never been seen as heavy and have instead been called brother, son, nephew and friend. My life is shaped by the love showered upon me along the way and I am made richer by every new experience shared with the people I love.

Thank you for bridging the past thirty-two years with solid supports holding me high above the peaceful and troubled waters of time.

Notes for Charles Martin Peterson:
After his father Martin died when Charles was 11, he was forced to mature quickly. He took on many of the household duties, attended school, and worked a part-time job. He did manage at times to sneak off and play baseball. He had a natural ability for most sports. He spent most of his teen years in Scotts Bluff, NE. When he was 14 he was working in Wyoming, operating heavy equipment to build a dam and a train tunnel.

He joined the U. S. Navy at 18 and was stationed on Guam. Later he was transferred to the Naval Electronics School, where he marched on the drill team. During this time he met his future wife, Peggie, and they were married July 10, 1955. Sometime later, Charles was accepted by the City of Hayward Fire Department, as No. 1 out of 150 applicants. He was a fireman, inspector, and then a Captain for 16 years, until he suffered a heart attack while on the job. He was an organizer and president of Fire Fighters Local 1909 and Alameda County Council of Fire Fighters. During this time he and two partners started a wholesale burglar and fire alarm distributorship that grew to four branches in three states. They were in business for 23 years.

While his three children, Dayna, Lorna, and Chris were growing up, he was involved with Girl Scout activities, was Cub Scout and Weeblo leader, and co-president of the P. T. A.

In Charles' four-year battle with cancer, he was an inspiration to many. He was actively involved with the Wellness Community of Walnut Creek. He donated his body to medical science at the University of California at San Francisco, after which his ashes were to be scattered over the Pacific Ocean.

Notes for Jean Louise French:
Jean’s Journey

Jean Louise French Quinn began her earthly journey on September 9, 1961 in Portland, Oregon and began her heavenly ascent on December 13, 2008 at Hopewell Hospice House in Portland, following a brave battle with metastasized colon cancer. She was married for twenty-five years to Michael Quinn, and is the loving mom of Bradley and Barry Quinn.

Jean attended Aloha High School and graduated from Portland Community College. She had a love for dance and taught aerobics in her younger years, then worked in the insurance and property management areas. After years as a school volunteer she began working in the Tigard schools, first at Metzger Elementary as an instructional and learning assistant, then secretary, and finally at the Tigard Tualatin District office as an executive assistant. Her sense of humor and deep spirit made her a much-loved employee and friend, and her family thanks all those who supported her in her final months.

While a young mom at the age of twenty-nine Jean was diagnosed with late-stage colon cancer. She latched onto life for the sake of her boys and held on for the next eighteen years. Jean’s passion for writing earned her a spot in the book, Chocolate for a Woman’s Soul. She loved the beach and her 'furry boys': the late Buck the dog, and cats Bobby and Elvis.

Also surviving are her mom Pat Miller; sister Ann French (Bill Newton); sister Teresa Walker; niece Sara Walker; nephews Maitland French Newton; Joe, Aaron, and Jordan French; stepmother Jacquie Ross French; step nieces Crystal and Cheryl; stepbrothers Mark and Curtis Ross; and stepbrother Steve Miller. Preceding her in death were her grandparents Edgar and Leifa; father Richard French; brother Joseph French; stepfather Frank Miller; and recently her cousins Bob Olsen and Daniel French.

In the words of writer Henry Van Dyke: "There is only one way to get ready for immortality, and that is to love this life and live it as bravely and faithfully and cheerfully as we can." Jean lived and loved bravely and was faithful to the end. We release her with love.
